Main strengths?

- The examples!
- I enjoyed the tempo that you went.
- The lecturer went through the topics at a good pace that made it easier to follow along and gave time for questions.
- The presentation style as relaxed and made the information easier to understand.
- The lecturer were excited about your data and what you have been doing with your work.
- Thank you for sharing the Medflex Go file as well.
- I really liked how much information our guest lecturer provided for us pertaining to mediation.
- Our guest lecturer were able to successfully answer all of our questions so I greatly appreciated that. Thank you!
- In-depth knowledge of mediation analysis and statistical analysis in general, and good presentation style through demonstration in R.
- Open to questions and interaction during lecture
- The instructor went through the basic Kenny and Baron's mediation approach and its assumption and limitations.
- Medlfex is a novel approach to accommodates these limitations from the previous approach.
- The instructor presented his own research, how he collected the data, and the findings he got so far.

Suggested improvements?
- Include moderation and compare both.
- I think more examples are always helpful!
- When explaining the first portion of the presentation, it was very heavy in information. I think this may have been a bit more effective if the guest lecturer slowed down during this section. Overall, I thought that the guest lecturer was great and knowledgeable in this!
